

Table of Contents

Chapter I	3
1.1 Thesis Background	3
1.2 Research Question	6
1.3 Theoretical Framework	6
1.3.1 Constructivism	6
1.3.2 Identity	7
1.4 Main Argument	10
1.5 Research Methods	10
1.6 Structure of Thesis	11
Chapter II	12
2.1 The Relationship between Collective Memory, National Identity, and State Behavior	12
2.2 The History of Comfort Women	14
2.2.1 Japanese Colonial Rule of Korea	14
2.2.2 The Establishment of Comfort Systems	15
2.3 The Collectivization of Trauma of Korean Comfort Women	17
2.3.1 The Victimization of Korean Comfort Women	17
2.3.2 The Democratization of South Korea and the Redress Movement	19
2.4 South Korea's National Identity Formation	21
Chapter III	24
3.1 The Unraveling of the 2015 South Korea-Japan Agreement on Comfort Women	25
3.2 Moon Jae-in Administration's Policy on Comfort Women	30
3.3 The Implications of the Comfort Women Issue in Moon's Foreign Policy on Japan	34
Chapter IV	40
References	43