ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

All praise to Allah SWT for his blessings and mercy in the successful completion of this bachelor thesis. It has been a long road full of lessons and struggle for this Author to surpass the trial in finishing his study to attain the degree of Sarjana Hukum. The author would further wish to express his gratitude to all parties involved for their understanding regarding Author's health, both physical and mental in the previous months which has unfortunately delayed the timetable of this thesis. Personally, the Author would also like to express his sincerest gratitude to the following persons.

For his dear parents, this Author expresses his gratitude for years of nurturing and guidance in all his life. The Author would also like to especially convey his thanks to his father for being especially understanding and supportive, a significant factor which has helped this Author to weather months of struggle. Also, for his dear sister, this Author would like to thank her for all her support in the last few years; he wishes her the best in the following months for the start of her university life.

The author also grateful to Mr. Fajri Matahti Muhammadin S.H., LL.M., Ph.D. in his capacity as a legal supervisor and lecturer to the Author. The author has gained further interest in legal research and budding interest in International Islamic Law thanks to his influence. Although, it must be said that this Author has yet to understand the TWAIL perspective of International Law.

The Author expresses his sincerest gratitude for Mr. Haekal Al Asyari S.H. LL.M. for his input which has helped the Author to crystalize outline for this thesis and his influence upon Author understanding of the role of cyberspace in international law. Furthermore, the Author is blessed for his help as the supervisor to Author's team in PKM competition and for his guidance when the Author served as his research assistant in a project.

Furthermore, the Author would like to express his gratitude to Miss Devita Kartika Putri S.H., LL.M. for her support as a lecturer and consultant in the Law Career Development Centre. Her counsel and knowledge has given the Author information to make decisions about career in law.

For DR Thomas Schmitz, the author is thankful for his knowledge and guidance which has helped the author in writing academic research. The author is also grateful for his review of the author's research article about international human rights law.

For Mr. Richo Andi Wibowo, S.H., LL.M., Ph.D. and Mr. Ardianto Budi Rahmawan S.H., LL.M., the Author is grateful for the perspectives of administrative law and its oversight. The case study of Al Capone arrest from oversight of the administration perspective is an interesting study for this Author. If this Author could be so bold to suggest another material for the future of oversight case study of Mas Richo, it will the tenure of Cesare Mori as the Prefect of Sicily in the late 1920s. Unlike Eliot Ness direct approach, Cesare Mori conducted a mixture of regulatory reform, trust building measures, and proactive policing to destroy the Sicilian Mafia influence decisively that they are no longer an issue until brought back by the Americans in the 1943 Invasion of Italy.

The author would like to credit Alif Duta and Nugroho Adhi for being the ones who trigger the Author's interest for legal research. Had we not go to the DEFINE paper competition in Universitas Diponegoro, this Author might go into a different path.

Also, sincerest thanks to Angela, Alam, Grace, Faiq, and Muti for trusting to work with this Author on our projects. Thank you for giving your time and effort to endure hardship together. This Author will miss how Alam is able to chill the surroundings, the diligence of Faiq and Muti, the thoroughness of Grace, and the positivity of Angela.

For fellow members of the ALSA which has been a fixture from this Author early university year, this Author will remember with fondness. Especially to Floydisa Filio, Rifda, Karin, Rania, Via, and Ricky. It has been a long time since our work together, but lessons gained will not be easily forgotten by this Author.

There are others that this writer wishes to mention, but due to the constraint of time, the writer would like to thank every future readers of this research. Hopefully, this research thesis will help develop the application of international law in cyberspace as a basis for future research articles in the future.
