

TABLE OF CONTENTS

FOREWORD	i
ABSTRACT	iv
TABLE OF CONTENTS	vii
LIST OF TABLES AND IMAGES	8
CHAPTER I	1
1.1. Background	1
1.2. Research Question	2
1.3. Theoretical Framework	3
a. Two-Level Game Theory	3
1.4. Hypothesis	4
1.5. Research Methodology	4
1.6. Research Outline	5
CHAPTER II	6
2.1. Infrastructure Financing Cooperation as a Foreign Policy Tool	6
2.2. Japanese Development Cooperation and the Official Development Assistance (ODA)	7
2.3. Chinese Development Cooperation and the Belt and Road Initiative (BRI)	16
2.4. Indonesia's Domestic Development Agenda Under President Joko Widodo and Its Structural Challenges	21
2.5. Implications of ODA and BRI Governance for Infrastructure Project Partnerships and Indonesia's Win-Set	22
CHAPTER III	25
3.1. The Jakarta-Bandung High-Speed Rail Project's Bidding Process	25
3.2. Two-Level Game Map: Actors, Arenas, and Veto Points	28
a. Level I Arena: International Bargaining	29
b. Level II Arena: Domestic Ratification	29
c. Domestic Veto Points	32

I. Fiscal gatekeeping	33
II. Oversight and Scrutiny	33
III. Implementation Veto Point	33
d. Political Constraint Indicators	33
I. Fiscal Exposure	33
II. Deliverability	33
III. Public Scrutiny	33
3.3. Turning Point Analysis	34
a. Fiscal Exposure: Gatekeeping and the Alternative of a Non-Guarantee Option	34
b. Deliverability: Constructability and Land Clearances	35
c. Public Scrutiny: Transparency Politics, and Blame Avoidance	36
3.4. Comparative Synthesis: Governance Design to Political Constraint and Win Set	37
CHAPTER IV	39
REFERENCES	41