Abstract

This study reveals how the political behaviour of the middle class is not stagnant. There are diverse explanations that determine their attitudes towards democracy. The purpose of this study is to show that the middle class does not always support democracy; it depends on how democracy could benefit them. A systematic literature review becomes an appropriate approach to disclose the case. After compiling journals from 2001 to 2025, written by various authors and in various contexts, on Scopus using certain keywords, 26 journals could provide suitable answers to the research questions.

Keywords: middle class; democracy; political behaviour
