This research for legal writing is aimed to know about position of lex sportiva to national law related to government authority in regulating football. The basic considerations for analyzing lex sportiva's position on national law are by knowing the conflict of government authority to regulate football with Football Assosiation of Indonesia's (PSSI) authority.

This research for legal writing is a normative legal research. This research is descriptive that used to get an overview of legal symptoms, namely the intersection of transnational law and national law that affects government authority. In this research, data analysis method used is descriptive qualitative and the method used for conluding is deductive method.

Throught the results of research and study in this legal writing, there are two conclusions. First, the authority of government and PSSI in regulating football in Indonesia is overlapping and causes conflicts between the government and PSSI. However, there is an ideal authority that government has which is limiting the authority of the government, so that it does not contradict with lex sportiva as the PSSI's basic law in regulating football. Second, lex sportiva's position is higher than national law related to government authority in regulating football. Higher placement of national law than lex sportiva exists only in regulating things that are related to football, such as health, employment, immigration, taxation, crowd permits, and other fields that are not related to the technical organization of football as regulated in lex ludica.
