ABSTRACT

Polygamy practice in various parts of the world raises pros and cons, including in Indonesia. There is a big question whether the practice of polygamy can bring prosperity in polygamy households. This study aims to determine the effect of polygamy practices on household material welfare in Indonesia using longitudinal survey data, the Indonesian Family Life Survey. Estimation using Ordinary Least Squares and Two-Stage Least Square proved that the practice of polygamy negatively affects the material well-being of households. However, there is a different effect between Muslim and Non-Muslim samples. The theoretical framework and method selection are discussed in this study.
